

Patterson Veterinary University Launches First Medical Continuing Education Course

Practice teams will learn how a sound approach to disinfection can be simple.

June 2, 2020(Saint Paul, MN) – Patterson Veterinary University, a leading provider of veterinary specific education for every member of the veterinary practice team, announces the virtual campus release of Disinfection: Keys to Success.

Disinfection: Keys to Success is the first medical course added to the Patterson Veterinary University course catalog.

Disinfection is an important topic at any time, even more so as the world begins to recover from the pandemic. As practices start to re-open doors, proper disinfection is no longer important; it is imperative. Even though many practices utilize disinfectants regularly, challenges exist because many are making mistakes that render their work useless. The keys to success include understanding and identifying common mistakes, the importance of terminology, proper cleaning and disinfection, and how the team plays a key role in the administration of the disinfection program. This complimentary course, created in collaboration with Virox® Animal Health, presents a guide for the veterinary team to identify gaps and opportunities when developing a disinfection program. In addition to critical disinfection awareness and knowledge, learners will understand how to leverage their passion and vision, producing a team managed program. The importance of team engagement and buy-in ensures protocols address disinfection efficacy making the practice safer for everyone who walks through the doors.

The Patterson Veterinary University (PVU) team realizes accessibility and delivery are just as critical as content. To accommodate learners, the course is available through the PVU virtual campus and is accessible using any device anytime. Complimentary registration includes the opportunity for learners to earn one medical RACE continuing education credit and access to downloadable tools to expedite the creation and success of a customized disinfection program.
